Sonnet 47. Betwixt mine eye and heart a league is took, And each doth good turns now unto the other. When that mine eye is famished for a look, Or heart in love with sighs himself doth smother, With my love's picture then my eye doth feast And to the painted banquet bids my heart. Another time mine eye is my heart's guest,

Sonnet 40 "Take all my loves, my love, yea, take them all" Why don't you just take away all the love I have? I forgive you, but love's deception is worse than straightforward hatred. Sonnet 44. If the dull substance of my flesh were thought. Continuing the theme of absence, the poet wishes his body could move with the same agility as his thoughts.

Shakespeare's Sonnets | Royal Shakespeare Company

In many ways, Shakespeare's sonnets subvert and reverse the conventions of the Petrarchan love sequence: the idealizing love poems, for instance, are written not to a perfect woman but to an admittedly imperfect man, and the love poems to the dark lady are anything but idealizing ("My love is as a fever, longing still / For that which longer nurseth the disease" is hardly a Petrarchan conceit.)
